

Research co-ordinator & editor

About Bankwatch

CEE Bankwatch Network is today the largest network of grassroots, environmental groups in countries of central and eastern Europe and a leading force in preventing dubious public investments that harm the planet and people's well-being in this region and beyond.

Operating since 1995 in countries that have undergone significant social and economic transformation, we monitor funds and banks that are often obscure but always important entities that function outside the realm of public scrutiny.

Together with local communities and other NGOs we work to expose their influence and provide a counterbalance to their unchecked power.

About the position

We are looking for a research co-ordinator and editor to join our small communications team. You will lead the design, production and distribution of our campaign materials and ensure these reach their targets effectively.
